Kansas Risk Factor Definition

An infant less than (<) six months of age whose mother was a WIC Program client during pregnancy or whose mother’s medical records document that the woman was at nutritional risk during pregnancy because of detrimental or abnormal nutritional conditions detectable by biochemical or anthropometric measurements or other documented nutritionally related medical conditions. KWIC will auto-assign if the infant is less than or equal to 6 months of age and the Health Interview record has Mother On WIC During Pregnancy? as “On WIC in Kansas” or “On WIC in Other Program”.

*Staff must assess and manually assign if the mother was not on WIC during pregnancy.

USDA Justification

Note: USDA Justification is provided because it explains nicely why the risk is important. However, you must use the Kansas risk factor names and definitions which may differ slightly from the USDA document.
